Community School of Music and Arts (CSMA)

Since its founding in 1968, the Community School of Music and Arts (CSMA) has grown to be the largest non-profit provider of arts education programs in the region and is among the top 10 schools of its kind nationally. In keeping with its commitment to Arts for All, annually, the school reaches 40,000+ people of all ages, abilities and economic means. At its Finn Center campus, programs in music, visual arts and new media are provided through lessons, classes and camps, as well as through free concerts, lectures and exhibitions. CSMA also provides arts-in-the-schools programs at 25+ public and private schools, as well as special community outreach events.
